

International Premier of the Faith Exhibit
Abbey Center
London, England
July 4, 2007

Formal Learning

Learning is an important part of every religion as each generation passes its beliefs and traditions on to the next. Most religions have schools attached to their places of worship.

Cherish Children

Every religion encourages its followers to cherish their children because children are the future and the hope of every faith. In most religions, special rituals are used to welcome children into the faith. Special blessings for children are often said at religious services. And in some religions, special rituals exist to mark a child's passage to adulthood. Most sacred texts contain specific instructions to parents on how to honor and teach their children.

Most important to every faith, however, is promoting respect for others because respect for ourselves and respect for others are essential to the care for others.

